

Penicillin Not New to Aborigines

ADELAIDE (Australia).—Scientific Researcher Nancy Atkinson, on her recent return from a trip into the Australian "out-back," reported:

Lifesaving penicillin was really nothing new. Paint-daubed aboriginal medicine men had been using preparations with qualities of antibiotics for centuries.