

Twins Make It 19 in Family

NORTHAMPTON (Mass.).—Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Barcomb became the parents of twins—their eighteenth and nineteenth children—and both were just as happy over their new arrivals as they were when their first child, Jacob Jr. arrived nearly twenty-five years ago.

“I am the happiest mother in the world. I always wanted a set of twin boys,” Mrs. Barcomb told her nurses at the Cooley Dickenson Hospital.

Mrs. Barcomb, now 42, weighs 115 pounds and stands only five feet tall.

Barcomb earns about $60 a week as a farmhand and part-time construction worker.

The newly arrived twins will be given their names after a family conference with the other children around the dining room table.
