

Albert Chow, Two Others Targets in U. S. Tax Quiz

(Continued from Page 1)

surrender the records in question or be held in contempt of court.

The friendship between Truman and Albert Chow dates from the 1945 United Nations conference here a few weeks after Truman became President on the death of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Chow, a former president of the Chinese Six Companies, powerful Chinatown family organization, and a former director of the Chinese Chamber of Commerce, has been an important local figure for many years.

GREETINGS NOTABLES.

He has extended Chinatown's official greetings to such notables as Madame Chiang Kai-shek on frequent occasions and has made several visits to the Orient in recent years. A vigorous opponent of the Chinese Communist regime, his visits included conferences with Chiang Kai-shek on Formosa.

He had free-wheeling entree to the White House while Truman was president and during a 1950 visit to San Francisco, Truman stopped a parade from the airport to greet Chow personally at California Street and Grant Avenue.

ALBERT K. CHOW
Under Tax Probe

In 1952, Chow was questioned by a congressional tax investigating committee about his $1,500 interest in a Carmel real estate development undertaken by prominent Democrats, including several in the Internal Revenue Service.