

Girl, 16, Builds Dress Business

NEWHAVEN (England) — Janice Gittings, 16, has built up a business in the last eighteen months selling dresses in her own store here.

She thought of the enterprise while still at school and borrowed $560 from her father to start it. Soon she had scores of customers.

Janice, who is her own saleswoman, cashier, window dresser, and model, has repaid her father and has $2,800 in stock and assets. She celebrated her success by running Newhaven's first fashion show and 250 of her customers attended.
