

New Magnetic Core Produced

VALPARAISO (Ind.) — Indiana Steel Products Company announced it has started production of a newly invented one piece magnetic core described as the first of its kind on the market.

Cores, usually made in two pieces, are used extensively in transformers and other electrical devices.