

Longevity Due to Lack of Worry

LONDON.—Freedom from worry was called the secret of longevity by a woman in Britain who lived to be 107 years old.

The woman, who succumbed recently, had her first illness at the age of 102. She started to wear spectacles when she was 103 years old.

Isotopic Center Planned in Egypt

PARIS.—The Government of Egypt is establishing a center in Cairo for the study of radioactive isotopes, according to the United Nations Educational Scientific and Cultural Organization. This will be the first research laboratory of the kind to be established in the Middle East.