

Uranium Fever Seizes Classroom

DETROIT.—The uranium fever rush is on at Detroit's Wayne University. A night class in uranium prospecting was started for an anticipated twenty students. Seventy men and a few women jammed into the classroom.

Michigan's uranium rush began six years ago when valuable ore was discovered in the upper peninsula. Experts say prospecting has petered out there, but that hasn't dimmed the hopes of many people.

Ghosts Take Joy From New Home

CANTERBURY (England).—The happiness of James Leitch and his wife, June, on moving into an old house after living in furnished rooms has waned.

The claim the house is haunted. Mrs. Leitch said she saw the apparition of an old man enter one of the top rooms, doors open after they had been securely latched and furniture move without being touched.

The Leitch's four children also have complained of being mysteriously shaken when they are going to sleep.
